Details

Everybody in ops and their brother runs Nagios and no one is indifferent to it, to put it mildly; no developer will touch it with a 10-foot pole, yet it contains hugely useful data. Alexis Le-Quoc, co-founder and devops guy at Datadog will talk about the journey he and his fellow datadogs started to create a better workflow out of Nagios (and other similar data sources) in order to get dev involved early on when an alert strikes.

The presentation starts ~34 min into the ustream, just an FYI.

Hey this was a great presentation! Short, sweet, and to the point. The product looks compelling, too. Unfortunately I am stuck with Microsoft MOM/SCOM at my current job. Anyway, thanks for the ustream too, I think it's def. worth checking out if you even think you'd be interested.
